

Oxford's world-famous covered market is home to a large number of specialist independent traders, each selling their own unique variety of goods. The market dates back to the 1770's and has always been an attraction for visiting tourists who come from far and wide to soak up the buildings history and heritage.

The Covered Market is centred in the heart of the City, accessed either from the High Street, Market Street or through the Golden Cross from Cornmarket Street. It provides a unique showcase for the very best in local crafts and food and drink. Many of the businesses are family owned, having been passed on through the generations, each offering a very personal, bespoke customer service.
